

Personal Citation

1. Think of a favorite movie quote or something their parents consistently told them growing up.
2. After about a minute of preparation time, come up one by one and cite your quotation to the class.
3. If you don't know all parts to an oral citation, make it up, as long as you have all the necessary parts for the citation.
4. The instructor gives you an example for clarification: "According to my Mom, in 1990 at the family dinner table, 'Voting is essential for your voice to be heard!'"
